Tea

Tea is one of the oldest herbal remedies in existence, dating back more than 4700 years, when infusions of the plant Camellia Sinensis were first brewed in China. Although modern medicine has diminished tea's credibility as a cure-all solution, the benefits of tea still remain relevant today.

White

White tea is harvested before the tea plant's leaves open fully, when the young buds are still covered by fine white hairs.

Green

Green tea is high in antioxidants that can improve the function of your body.

Oolong

Oolong is neither a black tea nor a green tea; it falls into its own category of tea.

Black

Sun tea, sweet tea, iced tea, afternoon tea, English Breakfast, Earl Grey... are typically made using black tea leaves.

Pu-erh

Tea lovers with a taste for exotic varieties may be familiar with pu-erh tea, a brew prized for its rich flavor.

Herbal

Herbal tea is essentially anything that doesn't contain leaves from the tea plant, Camellia sinensis.

It's About More Than Just Tea

For the people.

Our tea are sourced directly from small batch producers over 30 years.

For the land.

Our garden started as a wasteland, and we brought it back to life. Animals were brought back from extinction and dried bodies of water have replenished.

For the environment.

Our revolutionary eco-canister doesn't just look good...it does good! Every decision we make is one to reduce our global footprint.

For the taste.

Whether you prefer a bolder black tea in the morning or soothing herbal blends before bedtime, we've got the best-tasting teas for every palate.

Description

New Arrival! 2019 Bird's Tongue Green Tea from 惠州, Hui Zhou. It's our first time sourcing this unique green tea made entirely of just the young buds. Celery-like flavor, with a strong bitter melon -like aftertaste and has one of the most strongest and longest aftertaste we've ever encountered in a green tea.
